Subcontractor/supplier fair scheduled for jail construction

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE, JUNE 21, 2017:

NEW BRAUNFELS — The construction manager for the new Comal County Jail will host a fair for potential suppliers and subcontractors in New Braunfels next month.

The fair will be 2-4 p.m. Wednesday, July 19, at McKenna Events Center, 801 W. San Antonio St. Hosted by the Yates-Sundt joint construction venture, it will be open to all local material providers, qualified craftspeople, trades people and businesses interested in potentially working on the $76 million jail project.

“It’s important to us that local vendors be used whenever possible to help build the new jail, while also staying within our budget,” said County Judge Sherman Krause. “We hope this fair will help provide the information and resources Comal County businesses need to participate in the project.”

The fair will be come-and-go; a variety of qualified Yates-Sundt representatives will present detailed information about specific bidding procedures and instructions on how to become a prequalified and approved subcontractor, supplier or vendor for the project. RSVPs are encouraged but not required.

For more information, potential suppliers and subcontractors should contact Laura Adamson, Yates-Sundt estimating and marketing coordinator, at 210-497-3973 or ladamson@wgyates.com.

Yates-Sundt is a joint venture of Yates Construction and Sundt Construction. Together they have been named construction manager-at-risk for the Comal County Jail project, which comprises a new 589-bed jail and the renovation of the current Walter Fellers Law Enforcement Center into expanded space for the Comal County Sheriff’s Office.
